RAMBLINGS

OF THE REVEREND REDACTOR

CHRIST IS RISEN!

INDEED HE IS RISEN!!!

That is the whole story, the essence of our faith. Jesus Christ, the Son of God, became man to atone for our sins and make possible our redemption. He suffered and died on the Cross, and was raised from the dead.

Everything else is secondary because that is the central act of our salvation, and the evidence that everything that Jesus said and taught while He was on earth was true. Everything else points to that, everything else depends on that. The prophecies go back thousands of years before Christ; the impact of this event continues today, several thousand years since it happened. It has proved too much for some to accept, so they have denied it – some have accepted part of it and denied other parts – some have perverted it and tried to change it into something “the world can accept.”

Nothing changes the reality. If there is only person left on earth who believes, it does not change the truth of what happened, and what we celebrate this week.

The mystery of God’s love for us continues to amaze me, even the little of it that I sometimes think I understand. But this is truly not a week for theology or analysis or philosophical pondering or apologetic dispute. This is a week for rejoicing. This is a week that reminds me of being a small child and crawling into my father’s lap. Of the times when my mother was there when I needed to be comforted, or encouraged. It’s a week that has echoes of birthday parties, games in the fresh grass, and of course, decorated eggs and chocolate rabbits. It’s a week for celebration, whatever that means for you.

I know some people have work, there are always responsibilities and most of us are no longer children. Maybe occasionally in our hearts. This is a week to try and bring that celebration into everything we do, whether with family or at work, doing things we love or things we would rather not do – the fact of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ should be so much a part of everything we do that friends should wonder if we had won the lottery or inherited money from a rich uncle.

So go forth and rejoice. Celebrate. Have fun and find more love and joy and beauty in the world than you can stand. If you can do that – if you WILL do that – you will be well on your way to the first baby steps of understanding what this whole miraculous event is really all about.

And let us continue to pray for one another.

Nina Brekelmans Camp and Race for Girls: Call for Volunteers

The Nina Brekelmans Memorial Foundation was established to foster athletic opportunities for young women in the Middle East by supporting running programs in Jordan to encourage healthy living, expand participation in the sport, and promote women's empowerment. Our programs welcome girls ages eight to fourteen from a cross-section of Jordanian society to participate in an annual spring running camp and capstone race at Sport City in Amman. We are excited to announce the dates for the third annual Nina Brekelmans Running Camp for Girls and Nina Brekelmans Race for Girls in Amman, Jordan!

The camp will be held on four consecutive Saturdays - April 7, April 14, April 21 and April 28, from 10AM-1PM - at Sports City, Amman. The culminating event - a 3k race - will be held the following weekend, May 5, at Sports City.

We are looking for volunteers for both the camp and race day. Persons interested in volunteering for the camp or race can email Nicole Khamis at nlkhamis@umich.edu and Kelly Connors kec3r@virginia.edu.

For all those who helped at the Holy Week services - those who sang and who passed out programs, the Lectors and Eucharistic Ministers, the altar servers (especially Julien who made his debut as a server on Easter Sunday morning), the ushers and volunteers who did the little things that people never notice but that make the world of difference, the people who brought their baskets to be blessed, the little gifts that appeared for the Fathers, the people who experienced the joy and peace of the Sacrament of Confession during the days leading up to Easter – for these and all who simply came to our services and prayed with us

THANK YOU!!!!
